Game One: (W 10-7) Red Sox fans spent the night screaming down the halls, only to discover that they count their chickens way too early in the season.

Game Two: (W 3-1) Wrote a paper while listening to the game, again the Sox fans were screaming in our hallway about this being their lucky night...it wasn't.

Game Three: (W 19-8) We were feeling quite confident...and the Sox fans were oddly quiet tonight.

Game Four : (L 4-6) This was the game to end the series and put the Sox out of their misery...but we were punished for our conceitedness, and let them have their win.

Game Five : (L 4-5) At this point in the game we were watching intently, and cursed at Ortiz for winning the game for the second night in a row..wondering why these unfortunate chain of events were occurring

Game Six: (L 2-4) I was beginning to get worried at this point in the series, and was hoping that this wasn't some kind of punishment for our boys winning past series with ease.

Game Seven: (L 3-10) I came to realize early in the night that there was no way for us to have a comeback in the game, we were done. I sat in total silence...how could this have happened? How could an Armageddon of this magnitude have occurred? So I walked back to my room, hiding my jersey in fear that I would be thrown into a dumpster, or carried up to the Quad to be chained to a flagpole (you never can tell with those barbaric Red Sox fans), went to bed, and hoped that it had all been a dream.

Written by: Kaila Corwin (Yankees Fan)

Red Sox

Game One: (L 7-10) Moaned and cheered enough to give myself a headache, but we would have won if I had found my lucky seat earlier in the game.

Game Two: (L 1-3) Discovered lucky seat is not enough to win against Yankees.

Game Three: (L 8-19) watched with despair and looked up at my boyfriend with tears in my eyes as I whimpered, "but I learned all of their names, I watched all the games, I knew who did the coolest handshakes, how could they do this to me?" He smiled the broken-hearted smile of a true fan and said, "welcome to Red Sox nation."

Game Four : (W 6-4) Secretly wished they would lose and put us out of our misery, put up a KEEP THE FAITH away message and crawled up to bed as the game moved into extra innings.

Game Five: (W 5-4) Woke up to my roommate bubbling about our victory, preceded to hop about madly in my p-j's and proclaim my season long undying love for Big Poppi (David Ortiz)-the night ended similarly with four girls hugging and jumping and screaming their love for our Ortiz.

( Side note : From this point on my boyfriend did not change any article of clothing because he might lose the luck, and I don't believe he showered either for fear of washing away the luck! )

Game Six: (W 4-2) Watched with friends in the hospital (she's fine now) the last pitch of the night the entire hospital shrieked with joy in unison and then returned to work.

Game Seven: ( W 10-3) Was placing whipped cream on top of my good luck sundae as (finally) Johnny Damon (my outfield Jesus) blasted a grand-slam, I raced back into the room screaming unintelligibly that it was all me and the lucky sundae, as the innings progressed I became more and more certain that something would go horribly wrong and dash all my hopes like the end of last year's season (this almost came true when they put Pedro Martinez on the mound to the roar of "WHO'S YOUR DADDY?") As the bottom of the ninth began, I pinched myself and turned to my roommate and asked her in disbelief, "is this really it?" With the last pitch we all jumped up screaming and howling and insane with joy and relief and hugs, we rushed outside, surged down into the ghetto chanting, and pushed our way up onto the Quad where we met with hundreds of other students that shared our shock and joy.

The Republican's Perspective: By Nathaniel Nelson

What left the blue states blue with envy, the bitterly-fought election of 2004 came to a halt as Senator John Kerry conceded to George W. Bush. With that, disappointed Kerry supporters soon listened as Vice President Dick Cheney remarked that George W. Bush had won the "greatest number of popular votes of any presidential candidate in history."

Despite dismay over the war in Iraq and the economy, 51% of Americans still chose to trust President Bush to continue to lead America into the 21st century. Besides promising to improve the economy and lower taxes, President Bush campaigned on issues such as restructuring the health care system and building the Department of Homeland Security. But even these important issues were secondary to the importance that American voters placed on moral values. Seeing America's traditional values becoming increasingly under attack, many voters concerned with moral values saw President Bush as the more likely of the two candidates to protect their beliefs.

The months leading up to Election Day 2004 enlightened Americans as to how bitter American politics can get. Harsh accusations flew from both candidates as each tried to terminally injure the soul of their opponent's campaign. Unfortunately for Sen. Kerry, he failed to comprehend the strength of the GOP movement when he challenged them to "Bring It On." As a result, he truly proved to be "unfit for command."

VOTING

Does Your Vote Really Matter?

A panel discussion in conjunction with Voting and the Spirit of Democracy, an exhibit curated by Daniel Schofield.

September 21, 2004 ♦ 7 P.M.

Galante Lounge, University of Rhode Island Library, Kingston

Coming out of the bitterly contested campaign season, President Bush began his second term by speaking on the importance of a united America, stating, "When we come together and work together, there is no limit to the greatness of America." With that, President Bush began to make his mark on American history, for the second time.

Voting 04'

The Democrat's Perspective: By Robert Hanson

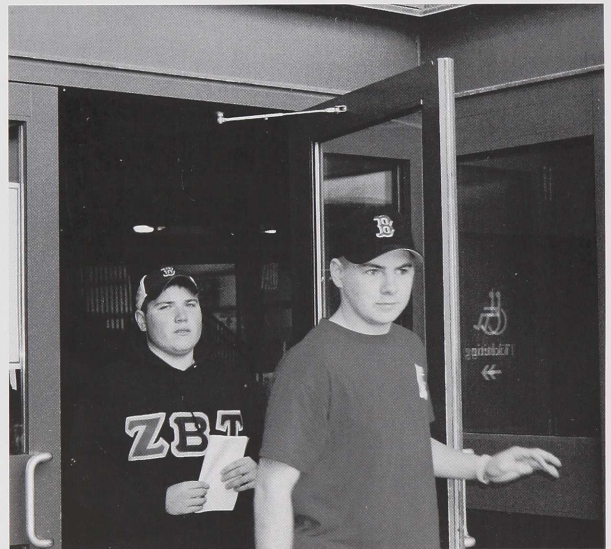

Most Democrats had already conceded the 2004 Presidential election in January. By Nov. 2, the Democratic base had become so excited that they were sure John Kerry had won the election. That is, however, until the final results started coming in.

While Democrats may be disappointed now, the bubble can only last so long for the Republican Party. President Bush has built the popularity of his party and himself on un-sustainable foundations, such as tax cuts for the rich in the face of huge deficits and conducting an egotistical foreign policy with the assumption that our allies will simply follow our lead. Even now, Republicans are trying to eliminate the checks and balances our government was founded upon by trying to take away Senator's power to filibuster extremist judicial nominees and interfering in the business of the judiciary. Soon, there will be a backlash against the arrogance of the Republican Party, and Democrats will be there to help set the country right again.

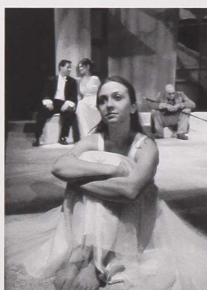

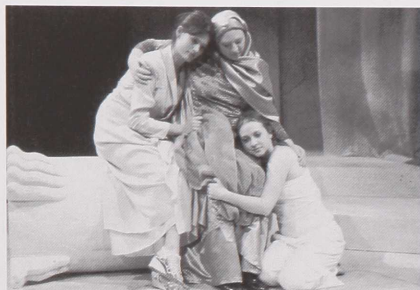

Many people look at the 2004 election results and say it is an example of the weaknesses of the Democratic Party. However, any party that can put forward a candidate against a popular, wartime incumbent and still manage to come within three percent of winning is still very strong.

Even now, the future of the Democratic Party can be previewed. The failing Democratic Party of the past can be seen in the likes of Dick Gephardt, Tom Daschle, and Terry McAuliffe. The future is in people like Barack Obama, Gavin Newsom, and Hillary Clinton. While Democrats may have had a "rebuilding year" in 2004, our time will come. It is only a matter of time before Republicans have some 'splainin' to do.

Marching Band

You moved off campus to avoid: walking in on your roommate, cockroaches, buying new shower flipflops, dining hall food, RAs, hall meetings, cleaning your room, communal bathrooms, insane hallmates, fire drills, blasting music at 3 am, broken internet, climbing bunkbeds, broken heaters, brown water, getting caught...

But you still miss: rolling out of bed 10 minutes before class, not paying bills, using less gas, finding a parking spot, your hallmates, eating more than just pasta, studying with friends, late night walks up to the emporium, trips to the gym, feeding the ducks, hope late night, cramming as many people into your room as possible...

VDAY is...

“A movement: an organized effort to finally end violence against women.”

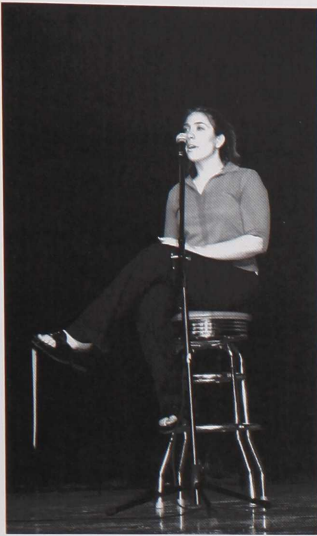

“A vision: we see a civilization where women live in freedom and safety.”

“A spirit: affirming that life should be lived creating and thriving rather than surviving or recovering from terrible atrocities.”

“A catalyst: by raising wide public awareness of the issue, it will reinvigorate efforts already under way and commence new initiatives in publicity, education, and law.”

“A vital on-going process: we proclaim Valentine’s Day as V-Day until the violence against women stops, then it will become Victory Day!”

All quotes provided by the Violence Against Women Prevention Program. All proceeds from V-Day 2005 benefited this program, in hopes to see a day where women are safe and free.

“Before you’ve finished your breakfast in the morning, you’ll have relied on half the world.”
- Martin Luther King Jr.

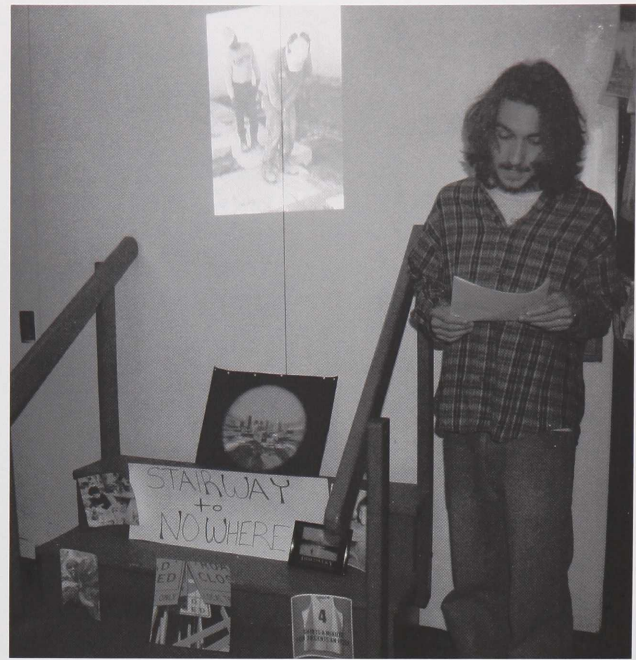

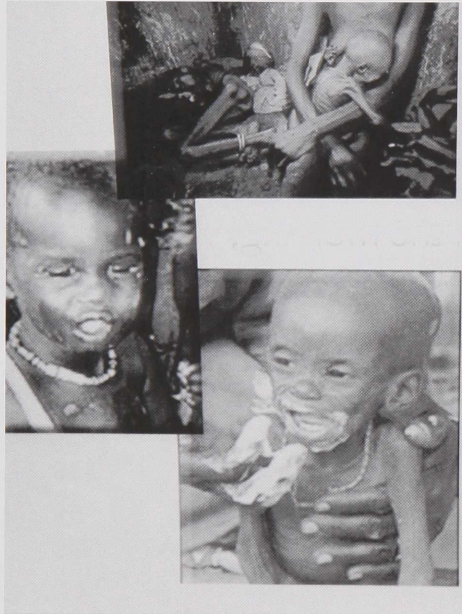

“You must become the change you wish to see in the world.”

-Ghandi

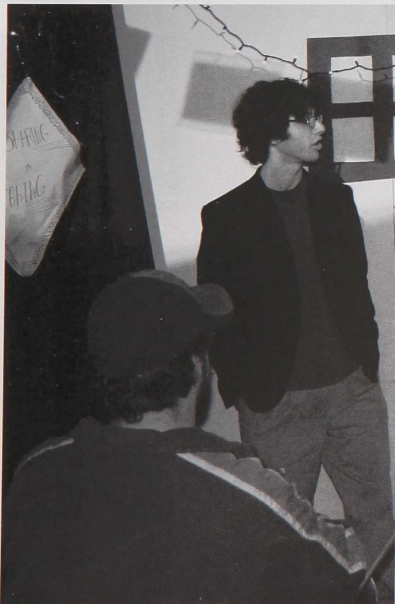

“We will not change unless we survive, but we will not survive unless we change.”

- Unknown

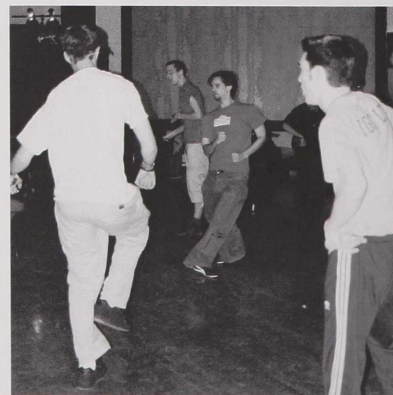

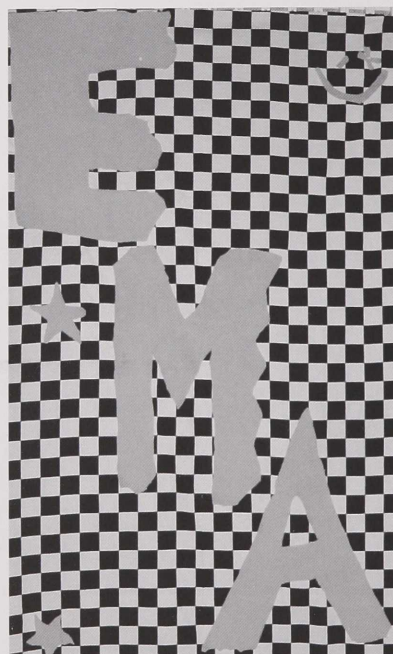

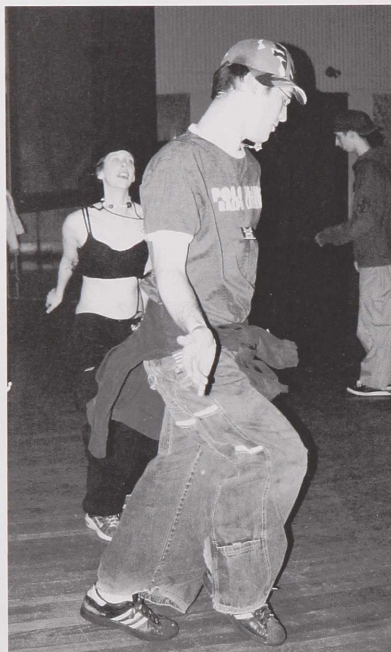

Boxes and Walls is a student-run interactive tour raising awareness about different forms of discrimination. It was held March 1- March 3, 2005.

Rainville Leadership Awards

Student Leadership Award

Katie Stailing is President of RAM choices and a member of both the Peer Advocate Program and Student Athletic Committee. She is also a member and Captain of the Women's Basketball Team, despite five knee surgeries over her four years on the team. Katie is a journalism major with a history minor. She plans to pursue a career in marketing or advertising.

Robert A. Rainville was Vice President of Student Affairs from 1980- 1986. The Office of Student Involvement and Experiential Learning / Memorial Union and Student Life have hosted an annual award ceremony in his memory for the past seventeen years. The ceremony is designed to celebrate and foster student leadership at URI. All students are nominated and then must complete an intense application and interview process before being chosen. Congratulations to the 2005 recipients!

Student Employee Award

Melissa Harrington has been an employee of the URI Aquatics program for over five years. She currently acts as head lifeguard, a position she earned by displaying responsibility and dedication. Melissa also organizes events to promote the Tootell program within the URI community. She is a Marketing, International Business, and French triple major.

Team Excellence Award

The College of Pharmacy Student Leadership Council creates and organizes both educational and social activities for the college and community. This team of students operates under four fundamental tenets: to foster a sense of community in the College of Pharmacy; to promote academic reform; to advocate health and disease prevention; and to promote political advocacy in the field of pharmacy.

Dear Tracy,

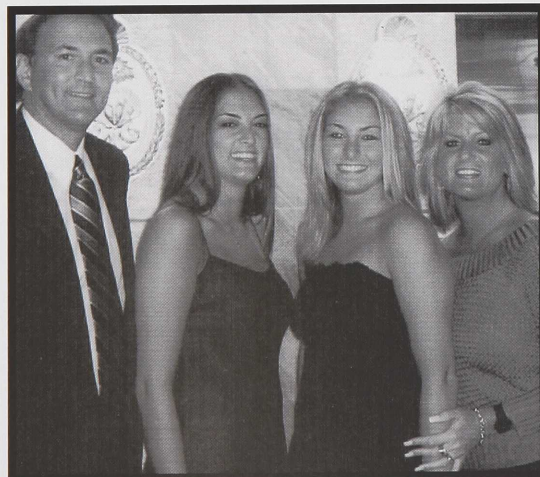

We can't believe how quickly the past four years have gone. It seems like just yesterday you were moving into Browning, pledging the sororities and learning your way around campus and Providence. Yeah DZ!

Well, you certainly have come a long way. You've learned so much about the world around you and even more about the wonderful person you are. You've made some great friends and have been a great friend to so many lucky people. You have matured into a very special young lady with talents, a great sense of humor and a genuine desire to be successful in this world. You have already accomplished so much with the best yet to come! As you look forward to the future, be proud of your past!

We wish you much success as you head back to the excitement and craziness of New York City - it's waiting for you with open arms! Good luck with your career and know that you can do anything you set your mind to! We are so proud of you!

Congratulations on your graduation from URI. We love you and wish you happiness now and forever.

With all our love,
Mom, Dad and Amy

Dear Mary,

We always knew, from the beginning of first grade, that you would succeed in whatever direction you chose. Your Doctorate in Pharmacy was a lot of hard work, but you also accomplished this with your exceptional desire to do well. We are very proud of you and all you have accomplished. May you always find happiness.

The Renaissance Yearbook Staff and the rest of the University of Rhode Island would like to remember our missing member from the Class of 2005.

Brigid Narewski

Brigid was born November 18, 1982. She passed away on February 10, 2005 at Rhode Island Hospital. She was in an automobile accident on January 25th, on her way to her student teaching at the Ella Risk Elementary School in Central Falls, RI. Brigid was member of the URI's women's field hockey team, graduated Cum Laude with degrees in Art and Elementary Education. She will be remembered for her strength, positive attitude, kindness and smile. A fellow URI student wrote:

Full of Life, Big smile
Athletic, Dedicated
our loss ... Heaven's Gain

*"Kindness is the language which the deaf can hear and the blind can see."
-Mark Twain*

*"Kindness in words creates confidence
Kindness in thinking creates profoundness.
Kindness in giving creates love."
-Lao Tzu*

"Do not wish to be anything but what you are."

-St. Francis de Sales

On Brigid's desk, at the University of Rhode Island, were found these quotes highlighted in the book, The Book of Positive Quotations.

“Situated in the historic community of Kingston, the Kingston Campus of the University of Rhode Island captures all the splendor and excitement of New England. Just a few miles south and east are the beautiful coastline and beaches which have given Rhode Island its national reputation, and a few miles to the north and west exists the picturesque countryside that so many authors have espoused for generations. And here in the middle exists the university -- free from the hassles of the big city, yet complete with all the modern conveniences of the contemporary American lifestyles. Class after class of students never forget the scenery around the campus. And the splendid nineteenth-century architecture provides a perfect setting for teaching the virtues of classic academia. Warm spring mornings and snow-filled winter evenings leave memories that students carry with them for life. Hardly anyone forgets the first time they’ve seen the snow covering the quadrangle. What a perfect place to pursue life’s true meanings.” -- from 1987 Renaissance

Remembrance

It was all so new
not so long ago
yet at once it's gone.

So remember me
when the laughter of children
touches your ears

Do not let time
shatter the image
forged in my memories.

Today is binding
Yet tomorrow is forever

So remember me
when snow falls on the ocean
or sun streams though an open window
Because I will remember you.

-- Ericka Jenson, from 1988 Renaissance

“Each one of you - that is, each one of you that is worth his salt - is struggling with certain questions. You are asking yourselves and perhaps your friends: What is life? What is success? What is happiness? What is good? And in the dark of the night you are asking yourself: What am I? What do I want? Where am I going? Those questions you must ask, somehow, sometime; and the answers you find for them will determine largely what you will become and what you will find. Primarily, you have come to college to learn the answers to these questions, and your life depends on the answers. Each one of you will have to reach his own conclusions, since no one can reach them for you. Two thousand years ago, Pilate asked: “What is truth?” Millions have repeated the questions, thousands have striven to answer it - and it remains the enigma of the world. You, too, must strive to answer it. You probably will never succeed, but in striving you will attain something like education; you will learn something like wisdom. Out of the confusion, the contradictions, the eternal mysteries, you will evolve a philosophy of life - and to evolve that philosophy is your primary purpose in coming to college.” -- Percy Marks from 1969 Renaissance

“College ... the best four (or five, or six ...) years of your life, so they say. A time to break away from home and parents and find your own identity, your own interests, your own capabilities. A time to have fun, meet new people, try new things, and explore possible future careers. A time of decisions, determining what directions your life will take.” -- from 1986 Renaissance

Things to Remember ...

Thanks be to the mothers and fathers, the brothers and sisters, the friends and lovers who punctuate our lives with joy and excitement.

Live your life as you want to and not as anyone tells you to.
It's your life isn't it?

From now on you are the creator of good and also of evil. It is your responsibility to live the best and most respectable way you can. Remember to trust your instincts and that things aren't always as they seem.

A Message from the President:

To the Members of the Graduating Class,

As you leave the gray granite and the green lawns of Kingston, you enter a world of stunning complexity. Never in human history have we seen change of this magnitude, change moving relentlessly forward in geometrical progressions. As a people, we live in a virtual world that takes us without effort to any and every spot on this small planet, and what goes on there impacts our lives in ways we struggle to understand. The ancient questions of meaning and purpose have new import and new context. And to this changed reality you leave the University of Rhode Island, ready to lead.

I believe with all my heart that you are prepared to do just that: to lead a free people toward a better future, the most noble of missions. Your mentors on the faculty have taught you how to learn, the work you will be doing throughout your life. What creates value today is the creative response to constantly changing challenges, and to make those responses requires the commitment and skill to learn every day. You have learned here at URI to think like an artist, a scientist, a humanist, a psychologist and a sociologist, to examine what is thought to be a settled fact with a critical eye and to challenge what is only comfortable. Your professional skills have been honed by working side by side with professors whose own learning still leaves me simply astonished.

With your families, your friends and the faculty and staff of this University, you have also sharpened the set of ethical standards to which you will hold yourself and others accountable. You know much more about what you stand for and what you will not stand for. These are the roots that keep you grounded in the world of change, that enable you to fly straight and true.

It is my greatest hope that the road ahead of you will be filled with meaningful challenge and with joy, that the days ahead will be as rich and happy as has been your time at the University of Rhode Island. This will always be your university, and I trust you will come back to see us often, to stroll among the daffodils of April and the red leaves of autumn at the place your adult life began.

Robert L. Carothers
President

The Renaissance Yearbook staff would like to wish the best to all the graduating seniors. You have completed a big step in your lives, but that by no means indicates that life shall be easy from now on. There are many obstacles still to come, but we have great faith that you all shall flourish with all that life has to offer to you.
